Bogotá, D.C., February 1, 2018. Grupo Energía Bogotá (GEB) received one of the most important recognitions at a global level in sustainability management.

It refers to its entry into the RobecoSAM's Sustainability Yearbook 2018, a firm that evaluates the performance in this matter of 2479 companies from 60 productive sectors, in 34 countries, through the Dow Jones Sustainability index.

During six consecutive years GEB has been in the Dow Jones index, but this is the first time it enters the yearbook, a very important event because this publication only lists companies with the best performance in sustainability and those that obtained an important improvement with respect to the immediately prior year. GEB is part of the 15% of companies with the best performance.

The yearbook is a publication that circulates at a global level and allows markets to identify the companies whose value development is based on sustainability.

This result ratifies Grupo Energía Bogotá's commitment with the creation of shared value from the deployment of its corporate strategy and its commitment to build trust with its stakeholders in terms of legitimacy, transparency and attractive and sustainable investment.

Among the 34 countries where the evaluation was made, Colombia obtained an outstanding result because of the number of companies that effectively manage sustainability. Together with GEB, 12 more companies were recognized in the yearbook.

The Dow Jones is the most recognized sustainability index at an international level. This index analyzes the performance of leading companies in social, environmental and economic aspects. It was created in 1999 with the purpose of recognizing the companies with the highest standards in the mentioned matters.

For the president of Grupo Energía de Bogotá, Astrid Alvarez, this recognition is evidence of the great work that GEB is doing and its commitment with the development of a sustainability policy.
